

Qualtrics Code of Ethics and Business Conduct

January 2025

© 2024 Qualtrics LLC

Introduction

Team,

At Qualtrics, our vision is to improve the human experience. As technology advances, we have an opportunity to lead a transformation in the way organizations listen, understand, and act on feedback from their customers and employees.

Our ability to accomplish this and to deliver business outcomes depends on trust—the trust we build and the trust we earn from our customers, our partners, and our teammates. We play to win, and we must always play by the rules.

This Code of Ethics and Business Conduct contains our rules of engagement. It helps us serve our customers with the highest standards of an ethical business while protecting each of us, each of our teammates, and the company itself.

Winning together and protecting each other both require a One Team effort. Please review, understand this document, and follow the code. We have an incredible team of experts helping us live this code. If you have any questions, the Compliance team is here to help.

Thank you,

Zig Serafin
CEO, Qualtrics

SECTION 1

Our values & culture

Our values & culture

At Qualtrics, our mission is to help organizations serve and support their customers and employees in proactive, personal ways. We do this by conducting our business activities with integrity, being respectful and inclusive of our people and stakeholders, and always aiming to positively impact the areas we operate in. We strive for sustainable growth while protecting our environment, and we are committed to using our global resources and reach to help the economy, society, and environment prosper.

This Code of Ethics and Business Conduct for Employees (“Code”) tells us how we can act and conduct business with integrity and build trust with our people and stakeholders so that together we can fulfill our purpose and comply with our legal and contractual obligations.

1.1 ALL IN ON ETHICAL BUSINESS PRACTICES

We are all accountable for the way we conduct our business. This Code applies to all Qualtrics employees and external workers, including members of the executive management team. The Code defines standards for conduct in all business, legal, and ethical matters carried out in daily business, and provides guidance for dealings with customers, vendors, and partners; interaction with competitors; and in financial areas.

As employees, we can demonstrate our commitment to ethics & compliance by ensuring that we:

- + Behave fairly, ethically, and with integrity in all business activities, and encourage our colleagues to do the same.
- + Familiarize ourselves with and act in accordance with our policies and guidelines, including this Code.
- + Seek help and guidance on matters of compliance – from your manager, the People team, or the Compliance team.
- + Raise concerns over potential non-compliance on our reporting channel(s). For further information about reporting channel(s), see the Speak Out section of this Code.

If you are a leader, you play a special role in modeling these behaviors to encourage and support employees in creating a foundation of trust.

SECTION 2

Ethical business & you

Ethical business & you

2.1 ASK YOURSELF

We rely on you and our ecosystem – including customers, partners, and suppliers – to ensure that every decision and action made on behalf of and related to our organization is legal, fair, and compliant with our policies and guidelines.

This Code helps guide your conduct as you do business at Qualtrics. Many principles described in this Code are general, and this Code cannot cover every situation that may arise. It is a starting point and not the exclusive source of information on how we conduct business.

We must all familiarize ourselves with applicable Qualtrics policies and governance documents, as well as complete all required annual training, as they provide detailed guidance. Each employee and contractor must complete training regarding this Code at least annually.

Use common sense and good judgment in applying this Code. If you have questions about it, seek support from the Compliance team.

Failure to comply with this Code may result in an investigation leading, in some cases, to employment consequences and/or disciplinary action. You may also be subject to civil court action and/or criminal penalties and prosecution.

The current version of the Code of Ethics & Business Conduct will remain available on Odo and employees should consult that version should any questions arise.

If at any time you are unsure of the best course of action, ask yourself these questions to determine the right steps to take:

Ask yourself

Don't do it!

Not sure?

Review applicable policies, check with your manager if necessary, or ask the respective experts for support.

2.2 SPEAK OUT

Prevention is best; however, if something does go wrong, we count on you to speak out. We rely on you and our ecosystem to report any potential misconduct you become aware of.

We can only fix a problem if we know about it. The earlier we learn about an issue, the greater the chances to mitigate potential harm to Qualtrics, our employees, and our business partners.

If something doesn't feel right, look right, or sound right, it may not be right.

We encourage you to speak out.

2.2.1 REPORTING AN ISSUE

You should report any compliance concerns relating to the Code, company policies, or any laws and regulations in good faith. You can do so confidentially and, if desired, anonymously.

When possible, you should talk to your manager when questions or problems arise. Managers are responsible for ensuring that conflicts are resolved appropriately.

If you are hesitant to approach an immediate manager with a problem or question, you can reach out to the Compliance team or file a confidential report (on an anonymous or named basis) on our whistleblower portal.

2.2.2 YOUR REPORT MAKES A DIFFERENCE

Qualtrics is committed to assessing every report, and where appropriate, conducting an objective and professional investigation of the matter by the relevant departments (for example, Legal Compliance, Audit team, People team etc). Where appropriate, we will carry out consequence management and apply learnings to strengthen our policies, processes, and controls.

When we carry out an investigation, we depend on your full cooperation to help resolve a matter.

Legal or ethical violations may result in consequences related to employment law, external investigations, action in the civil courts, and/or criminal prosecution.

2.2.3 QUALTRICS PROTECTS YOU

We know that it can take courage to report an issue. You may wonder:

- + Is what I am observing really wrongdoing?
- + Will I face consequences if I report?
- + Is it worth it?

Qualtrics does not tolerate retaliation against those who raise concerns in good faith to help protect and prevent damage to Qualtrics. We have safeguards in place to protect confidentiality of any report made through the reporting channels provided.

For example, we limit access to these reports to a small number of designated experts. Should any forms of retaliation occur despite our precautions, please report them. We can draw on additional procedures to address your protection.

We do not tolerate any personal or false attacks aimed at specific individuals. Dishonest, bad faith, or otherwise abusive reports are prohibited and may result in disciplinary action, up to and including termination of employment.

3.1 DIVERSITY, EQUITY & INCLUSION AND RESPECT IN THE WORKPLACE

3.1.1 DIVERSITY, EQUITY & INCLUSION (DEI)

DEI is a cornerstone of our company culture. With strong views on diversity and inclusion, immigration, wage equality, and the universality of human rights—without regard to race, color, creed, gender, or sexual orientation— we will not be quiet but will amplify these views on behalf of our employees and organization. We are taking action to improve DEI through our people, processes, and technology.

We are working to have an internal representation that matches the world around us and inclusion that far exceeds it. We will use our people, processes, and technology to reduce or eliminate both conscious and unconscious bias from our organization and we will become a guiding light for our customers to do the same.

The DEI Team is at hand for any related questions.

3.1.2 RESPECT IN THE WORKPLACE

We embrace and encourage different perspectives. We are made stronger by our unique combination of diverse characteristics, including but not limited to, culture, race, ethnicity, age, gender, sexual orientations, gender identity or expression, physical or mental ability, and different work-life situations. We make every effort to ensure that all stages of the employee lifecycle are inclusive to enable employee success, hold leaders accountable, and build a diverse environment – both internally and among our ecosystem.

Our priority is to provide a work environment where employees, suppliers, customers, and partners can be confident that their integrity, dignity, rights, health, safety, and well-being are valued and respected. Therefore, we commit ourselves to a workplace free from discrimination, harassment, bullying, mobbing, or retaliation.

We encourage you to report any concern or behavior that is inconsistent with our values and applicable regulations outlined in our policies.

3.2 HEALTHY ORGANIZATION

Qualtrics' purpose is to help organizations leverage experience management to manage and improve the four core experiences of business—customer, employee, product, and brand. The Qualtrics XM Platform™ is a system of action that helps businesses attract customers who stay longer and buy more, engage employees who build a positive culture, develop breakthrough products people love, and build a brand people are passionate about.

Conditions in which people live up to their full potential are mainly defined by an organization's leadership style and working culture. We believe that there is no organizational health without individual health. Qualtrics and our leaders take ownership for workplaces and a caring culture that fosters physical health, safety, and mental well-being, while all employees are empowered to take care of their individual health.

We encourage you to get involved and shape our caring culture and working conditions by using feedback opportunities to tell it like it is. Each quarter you have the opportunity to provide feedback on your employee experience via Employee Engagement surveys. These are designed for you to tell us what we are doing great and what we need to improve. The survey results are confidential therefore please be candid.

The Global Health and Safety Team, together with strong partners in Facilities, Security, People, and Total Rewards teams provide the information, education, and support to foster a healthy working culture and a supportive environment for all employees. In doing so, we enable the entire organization to be a role model for safe, healthy, and sustainable people management.

3.3 CONFLICT OF INTEREST

3.3.1 PERSONAL CONFLICTS OF INTEREST

We respect your personal interests and your private life. We also expect you to be loyal to, and act in the interest of Qualtrics. If your private or financial interests or relations conflict or may be perceived to conflict with Qualtrics' interest, a potential conflict of interest arises.

Even the appearance of a conflict of interest can be problematic and should be avoided. You must disclose any actual or perceived conflict of interest as soon as you become aware of the potential conflict. Seek advice and, if warranted, approval from the appropriate individuals or team (you manager, Compliance, or Legal, as described below). If any material changes occur after approval – for example, the duration or tasks of any secondary activities change or the amount of investment increases – you must proactively report these changes for further review and approval.

While there is no exhaustive list of such situations, potential conflicts of interest typically arise from the following scenarios:

- + Secondary Activities / Moonlighting
- + Board of Directors, Corporate Officer, or Advisory Positions with other Companies
- + Personal Relationships
- + Financial Investments in other companies

More information on these potential conflicts of interests areas can be found in the subsections below.

For any questions related to Section 3.3 Conflict of Interest and its subsections, please reach out to the Compliance Team.

3.3.2 SECONDARY ACTIVITIES

A secondary activity, whether paid or unpaid, must not:

- + Negatively impact your performance at Qualtrics;
- + Be performed during your regular work shift at Qualtrics;
- + Involve you using Qualtrics confidential information;
- + Violate your employment agreement with Qualtrics;
- + Be performed using Qualtrics resources such as computers, cell phones, software, or algorithms;
- + Include tasks that can be performed by Qualtrics, such as building surveys or writing custom code to access Qualtrics APIs and services;
- + Use or rely on contacts established through your employment at Qualtrics.

Before starting a secondary activity you must ensure that there is no conflict of interest and the activity complies with the Secondary Work Activities Policy.

If you have a question about whether a secondary activity is permitted, reach out to the Compliance Team to discuss.

Secondary Activities for Competitors

Any activity for a Qualtrics competitor is prohibited. This includes (without limitation) secondary employment and any other activities such as assuming any board seat, advisory, or supervisory role; performing any marketing or sales activities for competitors or their products and services; working as an independent party in a contract, as a consultant, or in any other capacity for a competitor. You must not function directly or indirectly or carry out any activity that assists in the marketing or sale of products or services of a Qualtrics competitor. A competitor is not limited to multinational technology companies; any entity of any size can be a competitor if it provides similar software or services to those provided by Qualtrics. The Legal team, together with other relevant functions, determines who is classified as a competitor.

Secondary Activities for you and your family

You should use caution when you or any family members engage in your own business activities if they are closely related to Qualtrics' business. You must always ensure that these activities do not conflict with the rightful interests of Qualtrics and adhere to these requirements:

- + While working at Qualtrics, you must not pursue business that conflicts with the interests of Qualtrics.
- + You must not directly or indirectly exploit any business opportunity available to Qualtrics for your own benefit or the benefit of others.

If you develop or sell your own third-party products, or perform services where Qualtrics offers or is planning to offer similar products or services, you must get prior written approval in accordance with the Secondary Work Activities Policy.

Secondary Activities for Customers, Partners, and Suppliers

We discourage any secondary activity for a Qualtrics customer, partner or supplier. If you want to pursue such an activity, you must get prior written approval in accordance with the Secondary Work Activities Policy. The Compliance team determines whether the activity falls within Qualtrics' best interests.

3.3.3 BOARD OF DIRECTORS, CORPORATE OFFICER, OR ADVISORY POSITIONS WITH OTHER COMPANIES

Positions such as board directors, corporate officers, or consultants (whether paid or unpaid) are considered secondary activities and require prior written approval in accordance with the Secondary Work Activities Policy. Any activity that involves decision making or advisory services, or that is linked to a role within a supervisory body for a Qualtrics customer, partner, or supplier is discouraged and must be approved by the Compliance team. If the Compliance team grants approval, your additional role must not affect your loyalty to Qualtrics. You must excuse yourself from voting in decisions that result or could result in a conflict of interest in terms of your loyalty or preferential treatment towards Qualtrics. If the company becomes a competitor and its status or relationship with Qualtrics changes, you must immediately resign from the position.

Positions with a Competitor

You are prohibited from joining the board of directors or holding a position as a corporate officer or an advisor within a competitor of Qualtrics because this directly harms Qualtrics' interests. This also applies to any company that promotes or markets products and services for a competitor of Qualtrics. The Legal team determines who or what is classified as a competitor in alignment with other relevant functions.

Positions with a Customer, Partner, or Supplier

Regardless of your position at Qualtrics, you must obtain prior written approval in accordance with the Secondary Work Activities Policy before accepting a board of directors, corporate officer, or advisory position with a customer, partner, or supplier of Qualtrics. The Legal team determines whether the activity is within Qualtrics' interests.

3.3.4 PERSONAL RELATIONSHIPS

It is generally accepted that your family and close personal contacts (for example, romantic partners) can work for Qualtrics, our customers, partners, suppliers, and competitors. Be aware, however, that such circumstances can lead to conflicts of interest.

Personal relationships that might affect the interests of Qualtrics and its employees

Your family and close personal contacts may be employed by Qualtrics if there is no actual, possible, or perceived conflict of interest. For that reason, we adhere to the following:

- + Employees must disclose the family or close personal relationship of any candidate to the Talent Acquisition team or hiring manager.
- + Prior to offering a position to a candidate with whom a current Qualtrics employee is related or in a personal relationship, the Talent Acquisition team must arrange a Candidate Relationship Review Committee to assess the conflict of interest.

- + Neither direct or indirect reporting lines between family members or close personal contacts are permitted. If such a situation arises, one party may be required to change jobs within Qualtrics.
- + Family members and close personal contacts must not participate in business or employment decisions that may benefit or damage the other employee. This includes, but is not limited to, hiring, evaluations, promotions, compensation, work assignments, and disciplinary actions.

Report to People and the Compliance team any situations that affect you that could be perceived as a conflict of interest so that appropriate steps can be taken to protect you, Qualtrics and the employee(s) involved. If, during the course of your employment, a romantic relationship develops between you and another Qualtrics employee within your direct or indirect reporting chain, you both must promptly disclose that information.

Although employees involved in a consensual relationship are individually responsible for disclosure, a manager's failure to report such a relationship will be grounds for appropriate disciplinary action.

Personal relationships with customers, partners, suppliers, and competitors

If your family or close personal contacts work, or seek to work, for a customer, partner, supplier, or competitor of Qualtrics, you must make certain that these relationships do not exert any undue influence. In particular, you must not share confidential information or allow them to impact your objectivity in any decision-making process.

You may occasionally interact with family members or close personal contacts who work for a Qualtrics customer, partner, or supplier – for example, during sales negotiations, consulting projects, and procurement. This is a conflict of interest for you, your family member, and your close personal contact at the customer, partner, or supplier. Many of these third parties include a conflict-of-interest clause in their contracts, and you are obliged to notify them of any potential conflicts of interest. It is therefore mandatory for you to disclose such relationships immediately to your manager and to the Compliance team. Never use your influence to secure a job at a Qualtrics customer, partner, or supplier for a family member or close personal contact, regardless of how the person became aware of the position. The required recruitment procedures of the Qualtrics customer, partner, or supplier must be followed.

3.3.5 FINANCIAL INVESTMENT IN OTHER COMPANIES

You must not have any financial interest in the businesses of customers, partners, suppliers, or competitors of Qualtrics that could lead to a conflict of interest with Qualtrics or create the appearance of such a conflict. A financial conflict of interest is present especially if:

- + Your job at Qualtrics gives you influence on Qualtrics decisions regarding a customer, partner, supplier, or competitor that could potentially be used for personal financial gain.
- + You have a capital stake in a Qualtrics customer, partner, supplier, or competitor that gives you influence on decisions made at the customer, partner, supplier, or competitor and that you potentially could use to gain a financial advantage.

A stake of more than 20% in a Qualtrics customer, vendor, competitor, or partner must be reported to the Compliance team preferably prior to acquisition, but no later than without delay after acquisition.

3.4 PROTECTION OF QUALTRICS ASSETS

We all use Qualtrics assets to help us perform our work. These assets support Qualtrics business both internally and externally and you must manage them appropriately. You must commit to guard against waste, abuse, or attack on these assets and use them only for the purpose for which they were purchased in our business environment. Once assets are obsolete or no longer required, you must return the assets to Qualtrics.

Before ordering goods or services, make sure you have the necessary spending authority. You must order goods or services on behalf of Qualtrics only for business purposes and to fulfill your work requirements. Qualtrics does not permit ordering for private use or for use by family and friends.

If in doubt, contact the Security, IT, or Procurement teams.

3.5 INTERNAL GIFT GIVING

Giving a gift can express appreciation to a co-worker or team. However, gifts between colleagues, other incentives, or awards, are considered private matters and generally you should not expect to be reimbursed for these expenses. No approval is required to give and receive gifts between co-workers or teams.

Qualtrics allows reimbursements for very limited, defined scenarios (such as bereavement) but this requires manager and Finance approval.

SECTION 4

Ensuring trust in our business

Ensuring trust in our business

We all have a personal responsibility to ensure our conduct complies with this Code every day. In addition, you should be aware of, and never intentionally violate, relevant laws and regulations. Violating laws, regulations, or this Code, or encouraging others to do so, exposes Qualtrics to legal, financial, and reputational risk. Such actions may result in disciplinary action up to and including termination of employment.

Violations of laws or regulations may also result in legal proceedings and penalties including, in some circumstances, civil and criminal penalties that could affect us personally and professionally in addition to a risk of adverse consequences to Qualtrics.

4.1 FRAUD

Our commitment to honesty and integrity demands that we prevent, counter, and investigate fraud wherever it occurs. Fraud can result in significant financial loss and other long-term business repercussions. Beyond legal repercussions, fraud can destroy trust with our business partners and investors.

Fraud is misrepresenting or concealing the truth to cause a loss of property or money to another person or Qualtrics. This may include, for example, theft of materials or supplies, falsifying expense claims, or improper reporting of financial transactions and resource allocation.

We expect you, as well as, our partners, suppliers, and customers, to report any instances of fraud, either suspected or actual, to the Compliance team directly or through our whistleblower portal. This helps us to prevent losses and to reduce fraud in the future.

4.2 ORGANIZATIONAL CONFLICTS OF INTEREST

An Organizational Conflict of Interest (OCI) can arise when existing Qualtrics relationships create an actual or potential conflict of interest for Qualtrics on a government contract. It can also arise when the nature of the work to be performed by Qualtrics creates a situation of actual or potential conflict of interest relating to another government contract that Qualtrics has or is pursuing.

Qualtrics may have access to a competitor's cost or other proprietary information if that competitor is a subcontractor on a government contract, which could provide an unfair competitive advantage when competing on another government contract.

If you are involved in a government procurement process that may give rise to an actual or potential OCI, you must consult both the Government Relations Team, and the Compliance team for advance review and approval of the bid. Although an OCI may exist, participation in procurement is possible if the government contracting officer agrees that sufficient actions are undertaken to avoid, neutralize, or mitigate the actual or potential OCI, and that agreement has been properly documented. If you are concerned that a potential OCI may exist, you must report this concern to the Government Relations team and Compliance team.

4.3 BRIBERY AND CORRUPTION

We do not tolerate any form of bribery or corruption. We will forgo business opportunities rather than pay bribes or facilitate corruption.

This approach is fully supported by the Qualtrics Board and the senior leadership team.

4.3.1 GENERAL INFORMATION AND PROVISIONS

We observe all applicable anti-corruption treaties and laws of the countries where we do business.

Giving and receiving benefits (including money, gifts, meals, and invitations to events) can help build good working relationships and goodwill among companies and individuals. However, they may also be perceived as an improper advantage and raise concerns regarding our integrity and independence. They can also create a conflict of interest (or the appearance of impropriety) and even violate laws.

This means that you may not offer, promise, receive, or give anything of value to improperly influence decision making or an action. This requirement applies not only to every one of us at Qualtrics but also to individuals and companies working with or on behalf of Qualtrics, including those with close personal connections to the recipient.

The offering and acceptance of any benefits must meet the following basic principles:

- + Serve a legitimate business purpose (that is, encourage or improve a business relationship) without the intention of an unfair advantage
- + Observe the applicable Value Limits for country and event type as published on Odo
- + Observe additional applicable standards for event format and target groups as set forth in policies established by the Qualtrics Compliance team. These may be published in ODO or made available upon request.
- + Be made in a transparent manner

Bribery may take many forms under the guise of common business or social practices. If you suspect potential bribery, you must respond in an appropriate manner as set forth in this Code. If in doubt, consult with the Compliance team.

We work closely with our ecosystem to achieve our goal of improving experiences. However, third parties can increase our risks regarding corruption and bribery. To avoid any illegal act, all business transactions through a member of our ecosystem must be in full compliance with all applicable laws, rules, regulations, and policies. We depend on reputable business partners that behave fairly, ethically, and correctly in all business activities.

4.3.2 MEALS AND INVITATIONS TO EVENTS

You may offer or accept meals and invitations to events, provided they meet the above-mentioned basic principles.

When you offer meals and invitations to third parties, you must adhere to the Value Limits for Gifts, Meals & Entertainment Policy and the Business and Hospitality Events Policy.

4.3.3 GIFTS

In general, you may offer or accept gifts and gifts-in-kind to or from current or prospective customers, suppliers, competitors or partners if the above-mentioned basic principles are met and exclusions below are followed.

No gifts may be offered or accepted with a value limit higher than that identified in the Value Limits.

Discounts and other privileges offered to you as part of a private transaction with customers, vendors, competitors, and partners of Qualtrics may only be accepted if these are granted to all Qualtrics employees in that country.

Gifts to government officials or public sector employees are strictly prohibited, as are gifts to customers during a competitive sales cycle.

In some contexts, and in some countries in a business relationship, it is customary to exchange gifts of higher value. In these cases, you may accept these gifts in the name of Qualtrics, but should immediately give them to the Compliance team to be used for the wider benefit of Qualtrics employees or as a donation to a good cause. You may not keep these gifts.

4.3.4 FACILITATION PAYMENTS AND CASH OR CASH EQUIVALENTS

The offer or acceptance of cash or cash equivalents (for example gift cards, vouchers, checks, or gift certificates) is not permitted.

Facilitation or “grease” payments are also prohibited.

4.3.5 CORPORATE SPONSORSHIPS, MEMBERSHIPS, AND DONATIONS

Qualtrics may occasionally engage in sponsorship activities to support our purpose and in return for legitimate commercial benefits such as branding rights and hospitality. We also make donations to support charitable causes.

As a large and diverse global company, we are a member of many trade associations, coalitions, and professional societies that represent the interests of the technology industry and the broader business community. We also advocate on public policy issues of importance to Qualtrics and the communities we serve.

We never engage in sponsorship activities, make donations, or use memberships for improper purposes to influence a business decision or actions that are contrary to applicable laws, regulations, and our policies. The engagement in these activities requires approval as detailed in the Donations, Memberships and Sponsorships User Guide.

To avoid even the appearance of inappropriate influence, we reject sponsorship activities with or donation requests from customers and their families and close personal contacts during a competitive sales cycle.

4.4 ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE

Artificial intelligence (AI) has the potential to unlock potential for businesses, governments, and society. As with similar innovations or technological advancements, AI also has the potential to create economic, political, and social challenges, depending upon how it is used and implemented.

We are committed to comply with applicable legislation in this regard. We are also committed to the ethical development, deployment, and sale of Qualtrics-developed AI systems. In our use and deployment of AI, we adhere to the following principles:

- + We are driven by our values.
- + We design for people.
- + We enable business beyond bias.
- + We strive for transparency and integrity in all that we do.
- + We uphold quality and safety standards.
- + We place data protection and privacy at our core.
- + We engage with the wider societal challenges of AI.

4.5 INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY, CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION, AND PERSONAL DATA & PRIVACY RIGHTS

Qualtrics is a trusted leader in driving business transformation and value through technology innovation. We are all responsible for protecting the intellectual property, confidentiality, integrity, and availability of confidential, personal, and proprietary information and data, no matter if it belongs to Qualtrics, its' employees, or others. We must ensure that personal data is processed according to data protection and privacy laws and regulations worldwide, in addition to our internal data protection and privacy policies. The Qualtrics Privacy Team can provide further guidance as necessary upon request. You can reach the Qualtrics Privacy Team for further information.

4.5.1 INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY

Qualtrics intellectual property (IP) is one of our most valuable assets. This includes confidential information, patents, copyrights, trademarks, and trade secrets. It is vital that you take appropriate steps to protect Qualtrics IP. You must also respect the IP rights of third parties, including our competitors, and avoid unauthorized use.

4.5.2 CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION

The exchange of information is a vital part of every business. Before sharing any Qualtrics information, you need to evaluate the appropriate classification. It is appropriate to share publicly available information about Qualtrics. For exchange of all other information, either by Qualtrics or a third party, we require a nondisclosure agreement (NDA) or other appropriate agreement. For additional information on what an NDA is and how to request one, please visit the Legal - Non Disclosure Agreement \(NDA\) Odo page. Please note, if you need an NDA for a supplier please submit a Legal Vendor ticket. If you need an NDA for a customer, please submit a Legal Sales ticket.

You should also avoid being exposed to confidential information of third parties in the course of your business unless necessary.

4.5.3 PROTECTION OF PERSONAL DATA AND PRIVACY RIGHTS

Qualtrics is committed to protecting individual rights, particularly the right to data protection and privacy, and strengthening our reputation as a sustainable and trustworthy partner in the market. We have implemented safeguards to help protect the rights of everyone whose data is processed by Qualtrics, whether they are customers, suppliers, partners, prospects, employees, or applicants. This requires all of us to respect applicable data protection and privacy rights when processing personal data during our daily work.

Qualtrics employees and external workers must adhere to Qualtrics' Data Protection and Privacy Policy for any operation at Qualtrics that involves the collection, processing, use or access of personal data. Personal data may only be collected for legitimate purposes, which must be specified before collection.

You are responsible for ensuring that all practices involving the processing of personal data within the course of your work comply with applicable laws and internal regulations. You are required to handle all personal data that could be accessed within the scope or your role with strict confidentiality, and not to use this data without authorization. Processing means any operation that is performed on personal data, whether or not by automated means. This includes collecting, recording, organizing, structuring, storing, adapting or altering, using, disclosing by transmission or dissemination, or otherwise making available, in alignment or combination, restriction, erasure, or destruction. The data may not be further processed in any way incompatible with the original specified purposes unless otherwise permitted by applicable law.

4.6 FINANCIAL STATEMENTS, DISCLOSURES, AND INTERNAL CONTROLS

Qualtrics requires accurate, complete, and timely recording and reporting of information to make responsible business decisions.

All of the Qualtrics' books, records, accounts, and financial statements must be maintained in reasonable detail. That information must appropriately reflect the company's transactions and be promptly disclosed under applicable laws and regulations, and must conform to Qualtrics' policies, procedures, and internal controls.

Undisclosed or unrecorded funds, payments, or receipts are inconsistent with our business practices and are prohibited. Never make false or misleading statements, entries, reports, etc. Such inaccurate or incomplete records or communications could bring negative financial and/or reputational consequences and do not align with our transparent company culture.

Our Internal Audit team is available to provide comprehensive guidance related to accounting, financial statements, disclosures, and internal controls.

4.7 EXPORT CONTROLS AND TRADE SANCTIONS

Export control laws regulate exports, re-exports and in-country transfers of items (including software) that have both military and commercial application. These laws are intended to address national security and other concerns. Deliveries of Qualtrics software and services are within the scope of these regulations regardless of how they are delivered.

Trade sanctions impose restrictions on certain countries, regions, entities, or individuals for economic, diplomatic, and national security reasons. The scope of trade sanctions can range from comprehensive prohibition on doing business, to specific economic and financial measures. Because of the risk associated with these trade sanctions and as a matter of corporate policy, Qualtrics products and services are not available in certain countries and regions. Furthermore, Qualtrics products and services cannot be sold to entities and individuals with whom transactions are prohibited in accordance with any applicable sanctioned party lists.

We follow such laws and regulations, including without limitation the laws of the United States, the European Union, and the United Kingdom and obligations as stated in our policies, which can be found on the Export & Sanctions Compliance Policy page in Odo.

4.8 ANTI-MONEY LAUNDERING AND COMMITMENT TO COMBATING THE FINANCING OF TERRORISM

Money laundering and financing of terrorism are global issues with serious consequences.

Money laundering is the process of converting illegal proceeds so that funds are made to appear legitimate. Very often, this is attempted through cash transactions, as the payer is harder to identify in these cases. For this reason, Qualtrics does not accept cash transactions of $10,000 USD and above. However, money laundering is not limited to cash transactions. Complex commercial transactions may hide financing for criminal activity such as terrorism, illegal narcotics trade, bribery, and fraud. Involvement in such a transaction undermines our integrity, damages our reputation, and can expose Qualtrics and all of us to severe sanctions.

Qualtrics forbids knowing engagement in transactions that facilitate money laundering or financing of terrorism. We take affirmative steps to detect and prevent unacceptable or illegal forms of payment and financial transactions.

Anti-money laundering laws of many countries and international organizations require transparency of payments and the identity of all parties to transactions. We observe all applicable anti-money laundering and combating terrorist financing laws of the countries do business in. We will conduct business only with reputable customers and business partners involved in legitimate business activities and transactions.

Employees should take all steps for customer and vendor verification per Qualtrics guidance to avoid being directly or indirectly engaged in illegal activities.

Ensuring trust with our ecosystem

5.1 BUSINESS RELATIONSHIPS WITH ORGANIZATIONS

We do not maintain business relationships with organizations that are or support antisocial forces, terrorists, or criminal groups.

5.2 CONTRACTUAL CHANGES AND UNAUTHORIZED COMMITMENTS

Transparency in business relationships is crucial to our success. Our business partners and investors expect us to operate in a fair and transparent manner. We must make sure that commitments to our business partners are accurate, truthful, appropriately approved in advance, and ultimately incorporated into written agreements that cover the full understanding of all involved parties. You must not agree to any changes, qualifications, or amendments of Qualtrics contracts or general terms and conditions, whether by supplementary agreement, side letter, or otherwise, without proper approval. Any other unauthorized commitments are strictly prohibited.

Any of these actions made without proper oversight or internal controls could lead to accounting and financial errors or irregularities, and could expose Qualtrics to fraud.

5.3 RECIPROCITY DEALS

Qualtrics may seek to sell products or services to its vendors as it does to any other customer. However, we must ensure that we do not enter reciprocity deals in which Qualtrics accepts goods and services from another company only on the condition that the other company obtains Qualtrics products or services in exchange. Any purchase or sale of offerings between Qualtrics and a customer or prospect should be a bona fide purchase, or sale of products or services that are actually needed and at a fair price. Qualtrics employees should obtain guidance from the Compliance team if a reciprocity issue arises and should not enter into contractual or other arrangements that could have potential reciprocity implications without advance approval from the Compliance team.

5.4 CONDUCT WITH CUSTOMERS

5.4.1 BOYCOTTS

An agreement with a customer, supplier, competitor, or partner of Qualtrics not to conduct business with, or deliver goods, or provide services to any other customer, supplier, competitor, partner, or service provider is unlawful. Exercise extreme caution in discussing with one supplier the competitive terms of another supplier. These discussions may raise suspicion of an unlawful understanding. A unilateral decision to not sell to a particular customer can become a problem if Qualtrics has such a strong position in the applicable market and the customer is dependent on its contractual relationship with us.

5.4.2 EXCLUSIVE CONTRACTS

You may not ask customers to buy products and services exclusively from Qualtrics or to refrain from buying the products of a competitor if this would impact competition in the market.

5.5 CONDUCT WITH SUPPLIERS

5.5.1 GENERAL

Guided by the Procurement team, we must act with sound judgment and integrity in our relationships with suppliers. The most important consideration is upholding Qualtrics' interests.

We must ensure that Qualtrics' suppliers comply with legal requirements in the country of manufacture and country of sale.

Accordingly, while you may seek to sell products to suppliers as you do to any other customer, you must not coerce any supplier to buy from Qualtrics in return for Qualtrics' purchase of that supplier's goods or services. Relationships with our suppliers often include access to trade secrets and suppliers' know-how. Never pass on information concerning a supplier's performance or shortcomings to any other supplier, customer, partner or any other person outside of Qualtrics.

5.5.2 BIDS, ESTIMATES, AND PROOF OF SERVICES AND GOODS

During the bidding process, we must ensure that all qualified suppliers are fully and equally notified of Qualtrics' technical and commercial bid requirements in accordance with Procurement's Request For Proposal Guidelines. The same applies to any subsequent details, changes, and additions to these requirements.

Qualtrics considers awarding a contract based on the long-term cost to Qualtrics, while considering the risks associated with defective goods and services, as well as the value of the long-term business relationship with Qualtrics suppliers. The Procurement team is the only authorized party to award contracts to suppliers.

Before approving invoices for goods or services, you must verify that those goods or services have been provided and delivered in accordance with the contract.

5.5.3 EXTERNAL CONSULTANTS

The Procurement team manages the sourcing and onboarding of external consultants. Please consult with this team for any consultant needs.

When engaging external consultants, ensure that:

- + Commission and consulting contracts are always concluded in writing.
- + Payments are made only for activities that are usually remunerated and are lawful.

5.6 CONDUCT WITH COMPETITORS

5.6.1 GENERAL

One of the most serious violations of competition law is the existence of an understanding between competitors. Agreements and understandings amongst competitors about pricing, sales conditions, production volume, or market-sharing are illegal. You must not participate in agreements or understandings of this nature.

5.6.2 PRICE FIXING AMONG COMPETITORS

All forms of price fixing among competitors are forbidden. This includes all agreements or understandings that only indirectly affect prices or other sales conditions, such as discounts. You must not participate in setting maximum and minimum prices or exchanging information about future pricing models with competitors. In individual cases, it may be necessary – as part of a reseller agreement – to provide information to the resale partner, who may also be a competitor, about future pricing models so that internal licensing payments can be adjusted. You must not convey such information without first checking with the Legal team on competition law implications.

5.6.3 COMPETITIVE RESTRICTIONS

Joint ventures, collaboration agreements, and mergers among competitors can affect free competition. In many cases, they require official approval. This often requires an analysis in multiple jurisdictions. Therefore, you must ensure that the Legal team checks the legality of such plans as early as possible and, in any case, before they are implemented.

Contact with Competitors

You must not discuss internal matters with competitors. This includes matters such as pricing and sales conditions, costs, market overviews, organizational processes, or other confidential information that could give competitors a competitive advantage over Qualtrics.

Obtaining Competitor Information

We have a legitimate interest in obtaining information about competitors and evaluating all published information about competing companies. However, you must not seek to obtain trade secrets or other proprietary information about a competitor using dishonest means.

You must not accept, read, or use information about competitor products or plans that is identified as proprietary information unless the competitor authorizes you to do so.

Qualtrics benefits from competitive information only when it is obtained lawfully and ethically. You should avoid exposure to competitive information that is confidential, restricted, or has no legitimate source. Actual or alleged infringement or misappropriation of competitors' confidential information or intellectual property rights may lead to litigation, which can result in monetary loss and preclude us from providing certain products or services to our customers. Actual or alleged infringement or misappropriation may also damage Qualtrics' reputation as a trustworthy business partner.

You may gather and use non-confidential information about competitors, including information that can be found on competitors' websites.

Additional guidance on permitted Competitive Intelligence activities can be located in our Competitive Intelligence Policy. Any questions or concerns about Competitive Intelligence should be raised to your manager and the Compliance team.

5.7 CONDUCT WITH PARTNERS

Partners are critical to our company. They serve as our ambassadors and support our business interests. We must trust our partners, be loyal, and treat every partner equitably. Presenting a consistent message is in everyone's best interest.

You must present our partners with equal opportunities and be objective and transparent. Ensure that you treat them without bias or unjust preference. For example, you must be equitable when handling competing bids from several partners for the same customer. To ensure the best experience for our customers, every opportunity requires trustworthy collaboration with our partners. This creates the environment to deliver a successful multichannel go-to-market approach.

If a partner is also a Qualtrics customer, supplier, or competitor, you must also observe this Code's rules concerning customers, suppliers, and competitors. For issues related to conduct with partners, contact the Ecosystem team and the Compliance team.

Ensuring trust by society

Ensuring trust by society

Our vision is to improve the human experience. Our pursuit of that mission goes beyond our own economic success and includes beneficial social and environmental outcomes—which we believe are interrelated to economic performance. Our efforts focus on creating a sustainable future for Qualtrics, our customers, and society in line with our commitment to the United Nations Global Compact and the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs).

6.1 COMMUNICATION

We must communicate clearly, effectively, and responsibly. We maintain high standards for communications concerning Qualtrics' business activities, strategy, or other company affairs to build trust, protect our brand, and ensure compliance with applicable law.

Only employees who are expressly authorized to communicate on behalf of Qualtrics may engage with members of the media, industry analysts, government representatives, or other influencers. Qualtrics-related contact with these audiences must be coordinated and authorized by the Qualtrics Public Relations \(PR\) team. Any contact with the financial community must be coordinated and authorized by the Qualtrics Finance team.

Those who are not authorized must, regardless of how a request is received:

- + Forward queries from representatives of the media to Qualtrics' PR team.
- + Forward queries from the financial community to the Qualtrics Finance team.

We encourage communication among employees, customers, partners, and others. Be polite, honest, and respectful, and always identify yourself and make clear whether you are speaking on behalf of yourself or speaking on behalf of Qualtrics.

Social media enables us to learn from and share information with our stakeholders and communicate with the public about our company. In addition to following all company policies, a general rule to remember when using social media is to think about the effect of statements that you make. Keep in mind that these transmissions are permanent and easily transferable and can affect our company's reputation and relationships with colleagues, customers, partners, and others.

Do not disclose internal, confidential, or proprietary information about our business, our suppliers, our partners, or our customers. For additional information on posting to social media and other common questions, please refer to the Social Media & Brand Advocacy guidance.

6.2 HUMAN RIGHTS

We promote human rights throughout our own business activities and along our value chain. Human rights refer to basic rights and freedoms that belong to every person. These are recognized in the International Bill of Human Rights and the International Labor Organization Declaration on Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work, such as the prohibition of forced labor, modern slavery, and human trafficking.

We take guidance from the United Nations' Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights to integrate human rights considerations into our standard business practices. We maintain a range of policies and procedures designed to ensure that we treat everyone with respect and to include actions to mitigate the risk of forced labor, modern slavery, human trafficking, or other salient human rights risks occurring in our own business or along the value chain.

You are required to comply with all applicable laws, regulations, company policies, and fundamental principles relating to human rights. We also expect our business partners to share our commitment to the advancement of human rights and to avoid complicity in human rights abuses.

We encourage you to raise any questions or concerns relating to human rights and ask you to report potential breaches through the various reporting channels available.

6.3 CORPORATE SOCIAL RESPONSIBILITY

At this time, Qualtrics is all in on cancer research and our official charity, 5 for the Fight. Donations outside of cancer research are very rare, and large company efforts require the Compliance team's approval.

For requests involving donations to a customer, please refer back to your manager. In addition to obtaining your manager's approval, you're required to make sure the spend aligns with the guidance in this Code, and obtain approval from the Compliance team.

You must not make funding commitments to potential recipients, such as the promise of a donation, before receiving the appropriate approvals from your manager and the Compliance team.

6.4 COMMITMENT TO IMPROVING OUR ENVIRONMENTAL PERFORMANCE

Sustainability is key to improving experiences across the globe. We strive to model sustainable business and enable our customers to create positive social, environmental, and economic impact. Led by our Green Team, we continually improve and invest in Qualtrics' environmental performance, enabling transparency and protecting our planet. We conduct business in an environmentally responsible manner and comply with relevant environmental laws, regulations, and standards.

We commit to reducing negative environmental impacts and preventing pollution by reducing resource and water consumption, carbon emissions, energy, and waste (including electronic waste). We provide the necessary resources and information to efficiently manage our environmental performance and achieve our objectives. We are all responsible to keep environmental protection in mind and integrate sustainable practices that support Qualtrics' sustainability goals. We can achieve this through sustainable product design and development, efficient use of resources, and other activities and behaviors that reduce our environmental footprint.

6.5 POLITICAL ACTIVITIES

Society is partly determined and shaped by politics and the political activity of its citizens.

6.5.1 PERSONAL POLITICAL ACTIVITY, CONTRIBUTIONS, AND COMMUNICATION

Qualtrics is proud that we are socially engaged and that we participate in our political process.

Your political engagement should take place outside of your working hours. Although individuals may make political contributions, these are not reimbursed by Qualtrics. Qualtrics does not make direct contributions for political purposes to political parties, politicians, or political organizations other than through event sponsorships and related marketing or contributions as allowed by law and specifically approved by the Head of Government Relations and Compliance team.

If you are engaged in political activities, avoid giving the impression that these activities are connected to Qualtrics.

6.5.2 LOBBYING

Policy making and legislation have a significant impact on our business. We are committed to engaging appropriately in the public policy process to enhance shareholder value, a fundamental principle for free and democratic societies.

Qualtrics may engage with governments on public policy issues that relate to our business. Lobbying is an appropriate way for us to educate policymakers about the legitimate interests of Qualtrics and to participate in political decision-making processes. By sharing our expertise and communicating our position on certain topics we contribute responsibly to policy making, but these communications must be conducted and reported in compliance with all applicable laws.

It is our policy to comply with the lobbying laws and restrictions of every jurisdiction where we conduct business, and to be transparent in lobbying activities and the engagement of lobbyists. Lobbying activity involves specialized policy and legal knowledge and so lobbying activities are solely managed by the Qualtrics Government Relations team, in collaboration with the Legal team.

6.5.3 MEMBERSHIPS IN PROFESSIONAL OR POLITICAL ORGANIZATIONS

Memberships in professional organizations are worth supporting when they allow us to shape and develop standards and best practices of the profession. However, we exercise caution in our political activities. If Qualtrics pays for your membership in a group that has or appears to have a political affiliation, you must align with the Qualtrics Government Relations team and Compliance team before joining. Of course, you may become a private member in such an organization at any time, but Qualtrics will not reimburse any associated costs or expenses.
